ONCE

When age was wrapped in dormant dreams,
And my feet stirred the grass and streams,
My tongue entrapped in learning still,
Soared through the valleys and the hills,
A companion of the wayward breeze,
And I rejoiced in my naivety.
Such was my right, for I was young
My beginning had just begun.
All of this and so much more,
Remains inside my childhood store,
The fields, a mattress of delight,
Where perfumes passed in silent flight,
To blend with birds, of song, and prey,
Each with a plan, for its own day.
Those woods, a buttress to the storm,
A shadowed fortress wet and warm,
Nurtured inside their dark within,
Wild nations of a different kin,
The drying bones and time worn stare,
Which creeps upon the unaware,
Were alien to my very being,
For I was new, and strong, and green,
These aging passions that now roar,
Are echo's of a time before,
When giants trod, with children's stride,
In a place where grown-ups cannot hide,
And in my solitude, I smile,
And walk beside them, for a while.

Activities

This month we have been writing and receiving some great letters from postcards of kindness. We are receiving them from all over the country now, we find it fascinating learning about the different places people live; from Scotland to Southampton.

For Children In Need we all enjoyed making some bunting and colouring Pudsey Bear in.

Some of us have been collecting autumnal foliage and creating collages, we have a picture attached of one of our master pieces!

We are liaising with the local schools at present to organize craft sessions and some choir singing.

We have made some remembrance day crosses and poppies that we placed in the gardens and around the building in memory of those whom lost there lives in World War One.

The Christmas decorations are coming together and Chase Park is looking festive! At the minute, we are making calendar's and pictures in arts and crafts as well as some hand-made gifts for our loved ones.

We have been working on our motor skills and making some hot chocolates! They were delicious.

Thank You

Karen Teasdale for the lovely Christmas tree donation, we had to put it up straight away! We all love it! Thank you.
